

We believe the Bay Area and its environs are home to the finest collection of wines produced anywhere in the world.

To the north are Napa, Sonoma and Mendocino Counties. To the east lie Livermore Valley and the Sierra Foothills. In the south are Monterey and the Central Coast. Although each appellation is special and distinctive in the grapes and the styles of wine produced, they have a common bond: quality.

Here at The Lark Creek Inn, Dungeness Crab, Sonoma Lamb, Local Salmon, Swordfish and peak of the season produce all play a role in creating our farm-fresh American fare. In our travels, local cuisine has always been enhanced by local or regional wines. Enjoy the best of both at the Lark Creek Inn.

Wine by the glass provides the opportunity to experience many different types and styles of wine. Sparkling wine can be the perfect choice to start any meal. Whether it be the Gloria Ferrer Sonoma Brut or the "Lark Creek Cuvée" from Iron Horse Vineyards. Sparkling wine is not only festive but is refreshing and readies your palate for the meal you are about to enjoy. Sparkling wine also complements many appetizer selections from our menu. And do not forget, one never needs an excuse to celebrate.

Sparkling

The quality of California sparkling wine has never been higher. From green apple and citrus to ripe pear and toasty vanilla, the following selections run the whole spectrum of styles and flavors. Produced primarily from pinot noir, chardonnay and pinot blanc grapes, the sparkling wines of California seem to be at their best when produced in areas such as the Carneros region of Sonoma or Napa, the Russian River Valley or the Anderson Valley in Mendocino. Recognized as the ideal aperitif or celebratory beverage, sparkling wines pair-up quite well with a variety of foods and can be an excellent accompaniment to the entire meal.

“Lark Creek Cuvée” is a unique sparkling wine produced expressly for the Lark Creek Inn. We have worked very closely with Iron Horse winemaker, Forrest Tancer, in developing and evolving our special blend. Starting with a base wine of 2001 Iron Horse Brut we create this unique and altogether different wine with the addition of our special dosage. Possessing crisp apple and strawberry fruit flavors, it finishes with richness, elegance and complexity: a perfect way to begin your dining experience.

Half Bottles & Magnums

Half bottles hold 375ml (approximately 12 ounces), which is a little more than two glasses. They are ideal for two people who prefer different kinds of wine or when one member of a group would prefer another option. Magnums contain 1.5 Ltr. of wine, which is about nine glasses, a good amount for a group of five or more.

Fad or discovery? Viognier plantings have increased as vineyards get replanted (perhaps the only “bonus” of the phylloxera epidemic). Grape growers are betting that we’ll adopt this exotic variety and make it a favorite. When not obscured by excessive oak, viognier typically produces full bodied, golden wines with a haunting, tantalizing and elusive bouquet. These bright sweet aromas, ripe peach and pear flavors combined with a rich texture can please a crowd.

Sauvignon Blanc

Inspired by sauvignon blanc produced in either the Loire Valley or Bordeaux regions of France, producers of California sauvignon blanc have evolved two predominant styles of wine. Most producers, by utilizing a variety of wine growing and wine making techniques, have been successful in muting the intense varietal grassiness of sauvignon blanc and are producing either a lighter, crisper, fruity style wine or a much rounder, fuller, more complex one.

Chardonnay

California Chardonnays are generally regarded as among the best dry white wines produced. The best tend to be fruity (apple, citrus, tropical), balanced by good acidity. Adjectives such as buttery, spicy, smokey and toasty often seem appropriate. As chardonnays age, they become more golden in color, and soften to develop complex notes of nuts or butterscotch.

Acidity. You'll notice acidity mentioned frequently in discussions of the quality of wine. Please don't be afraid of a wine described as having "high acidity." Usually this doesn't mean that the wine will taste like vinegar. Grapes are a high acid fruit, which is the main reason their juice makes such good wine. Few of us have developed a taste for strawberry or fig wine, to a large degree because those fruits lack sufficient acid to make a pleasing wine. It is precisely the dynamic tension between the acid and fruit in a wine that encourages us to take another sip. A low acid wine is said to be "flabby" or "fat ." The fruit flavor seems to coat the mouth and there is insufficient acid to refresh the palate.

Chardonnay

The king of white wines, chardonnay is easy to grow and easy to make, and in California it is grown and produced everywhere. The highest quality chardonnays, with a few exceptions, are produced from the cooler vineyard locations around the state. Areas like Carneros, Russian River, and the South Central Coast all produce excellent quality chardonnay. The cool growing conditions allow the grapes to mature and develop over a longer period of time resulting in the ideal balance of sugar and acidity. This higher natural acidity allows the winemaker to utilize many techniques. Barrel fermentation, sur lies aging, oak aging and malolactic fermentation (for that “buttery” texture and flavor) are all utilized to add body, texture, complexity and balance. All are attributes of good chardonnay.

Pinot Noir

The great red Burgundy grape of France has come of age in California and Oregon. Typically rich, lush and round with qualities such as cherries, orange rind, smoke and oak in their youth, Pinot Noir ages to a haunting complexity.

Pinot Noir

The best pinot noir, like the best chardonnay, grows in cool areas: Russian River, Carneros, and the Santa Ynez and Santa Maria Valleys south of the Bay Area. In each case cold Pacific fog bathes the vineyards each night. These cool growing areas allow the grapes to retain high acidity, and to mature and develop slowly. Pinot noir flavors are subtle. A grape that matures slowly is said to have had a “long hang time.” This is just one of the many contributors to the best quality pinot noir.

Rhône Varietals

Rhône? It is a large valley in the southeast corner of France. The red wines can be rustic, but the best have rich flavors without the harsh tannin and acid common to the more famous wines of Bordeaux, and prices are lower than Burgundy. They are commonly blends of syrah (blackberry and “peppery” spice), mourvèdre (spicy with mild tannins) and grenache (mellow and fruity).

Merlot

Traditionally blended with cabernet sauvignon, merlot has made its mark in this country as a favorite single variety wine. Although promoted as a “lighter” and “smoother” version of cabernet sauvignon, we feel this is not always true. Several of our selections are more inky, rich and tannic than a medium styled cabernet.

Malbec is a blending grape in French Bordeaux wines. It is also grown in Cahors and the Loire Valley of France as well as the Argentinian wine region of Mendoza. In America, Malbec is rarely seen on its own. In several of the Cabernet Sauvignon wines on our list, Malbec plays a supporting role.

Cabernet Sauvignon & Blends

Cabernet sauvignon is America's favorite red wine grape. During its youth, cabernet sauvignon is typically rich, tannic and full bodied, showing characteristics of currant, black cherry, herbs, green olive, cedar, mint, tar and bell pepper. Over time, tannins soften and complex flavors and aromas blend together, developing qualities of tobacco leaf, tea, leather and truffles.

Zinfandel

Considered America's own, zinfandel continues to grow in popularity. While typically possessing ample structure and concentration to be ageworthy, the greatest appeal of zinfandel is the approachability and drinkability in its youth. The ripe fruit, bright acidity and "peppery" spice balanced with smooth tannin all combine to produce a wine easy to enjoy now. Possessing a wide range of styles and flavors makes for a very versatile food wine, and while gaining in popularity, zinfandel remains a good value.

Sweet

Several methods of production are employed in the making of dessert wines, all of which increase the concentration of sugar by reducing the water content of the grapes. Ice wines (eiswein) are produced from grapes picked and pressed while frozen. Dried grape wines are produced from grapes naturally higher in sugar that are air dried to evaporate the water content, concentrating sugars. The most highly sought dessert wine is made from an infrequent, naturally occurring process; botrytis cinerea* or noble rot, a mold that under specific weather conditions forms on the grape clusters causing them to wither and the juice to evaporate, resulting in a higher concentration of both sugar and acid. These grapes typically make wine that are intensely sweet, honeyed and concentrated.

Port or porto is sweet, fortified wine that comes in many different types and styles, from a variety of California ports and the many true Port styles:

Vintage Character: non-vintage, a superior, richer and fuller flavored ruby porto.

Late Bottled Vintage (LBV): vintage dated, these are aged longer in wood ( 4-6 years ) than vintage porto and are ready to drink upon release.

Single Quinta: these are produced in lesser, undeclared years from high quality "quintas" or wine estates. They are typically complex and elegant, yet not as powerful as a vintage porto

Aged Tawny: Named in part for their color, these are considered some of the finest Porto styles. Aged for up to 50 years in wood, where they develop their delicate, nutty and complex character.

Last Call

We have a few bottles of these highly allocated wines left, they are the last of their vintage. You will not be able to get these wines again until the new vintages are released.
